A DAY in the life of... A Wedding Planner

Behind every big fat Indian wedding is usually a painful saga of the father-of-the-bride haggling with the caterer or the decorator, and bridesmaids being dragged to numerous fittings with the trousseau designer. Not in the world of

Candice Pereira, the mastermind behind Marry Me Weddings. With her fabulously customised services to suit every budget and style of wedding, anxious couples are assured a celebration of their dreams minus the unnecessary drama. ff

9 AM: Candice sits pretty at her desk in the Marry Me Weddings office. Checking e-mails as she sips her coffee.

[11 AM] I hope the bride likes this understated sari for the sangeet.

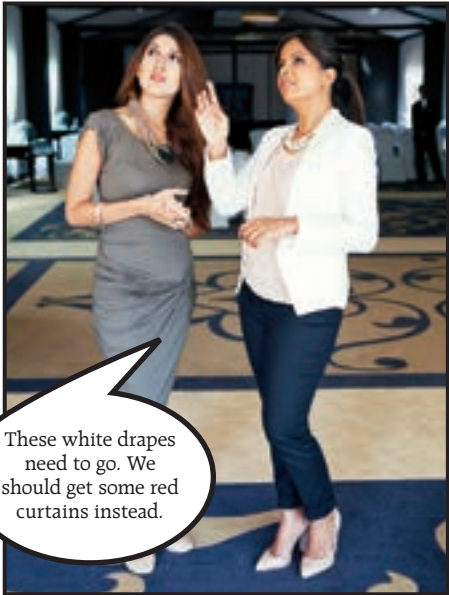

[12 PM] With two Tarun Tahilliani saris as options, I'm all set to meet the bride.

1 PM: Candice checks if the short and tall flower arrangements are wedding-ready.

4 PM: Candice meets Supriya, the bride-to-be, to discuss the table arrangement for a sit-down dinner.

These white drapes need to go. We should get some red curtains instead.

A funny sign-board at the office to make even the most stressed brides smile.

7 PM: Post work cocktails with friend Ashlene to unwind after a power packed day.
